Psalm at St Mary's, verses sung by choir; response sung by all:

FROM THE TEAM RECTOR

Today we are keeping Safeguarding Sunday in our churches, emphasising our sacred duty to safeguard all in our care, adults and children alike, from the abuse that has scandalously afflicted the Church of England.

Today we commission our parish safeguarding officers: Sandy, Hazel and Mary. We are incredibly blessed not only to have three PSOs when many parishes struggle to find one, but to have a PSO team that is so dedicated and efficient in their duties. Speaking personally, I know that I can check with our PSOs whenever I am keen for us to hold an event, try a new project, recruit new volunteers, and I know that they will keep us up to date with outstanding training and actions.

High safeguarding standards are a mark of competence, professionalism and a sign that church and community can have trust and confidence in what we do. I urge us all to commit again to ensuring safeguarding adults and children is the responsibility of each of us. Those with particular roles are looked upon as the face of the church, even when we don't think we are, and are expected to notice and report abuse and can expect to be a trusted person who may have abuse disclosed to them. Training is essential to equip you and give you confidence in your role. I am immensely grateful to all our volunteers who have undergone safeguarding training and our PSOs who have delivered it.

Marking a Sunday to focus our prayers and actions for safeguarding is an important step for keeping a healthy safeguarding culture, of particular importance ahead of a major safeguarding inspection that is soon to be carried out in Newham.

God bless you.

Fr Paul

ECO CHURCH

Attending the service to mark 10 years of Eco Church was such an uplifting time. Chelmsford Cathedral was transformed by the exhibition of tapestries - Threads through Creation by Jacqui Parkinson - there was beautiful singing from the choir, and we heard from our own Revd. Sandra Eldridge in the address. The refreshments were delicious, and the Bishop chaired a panel discussion to end the evening. And most pleasing for us was the reception we received for our banner - words like 'wow' and 'marvellous' amongst the praise for all those who worked their magic on their squares. Thank you to everyone who participated, and everyone will soon be able to admire it on display in St Mary's.
